How Leaders Can Apply Biblical Truth to Overcome Our Fears *Super Seminar	A vulnerable exposition of scripture of how anxiety and fear can be increasingly overcome by those in leadership.	Steve Beegoo
School Improvement: It's not a building project!	When we think about improving a school, our minds often go first to buildings or facilities. But true school improvement starts with what is happening within that building. We will examine how we might know our school is "doing well."	Debbie MacCullough
Transformational Leadership in the Christian Classroom	As Christian educators, one of our deepest desires is to see spiritual formation take place in the minds and hearts of our students. In this workshop we will explore how the leadership theory called Transformational Leadership can help our teachers to think about their role as leaders in the classroom, and to be the kind of leaders that inspire transformation in their students.	Micah Powers
Inspiring your new and experienced teachers to maintain their impact	A quarter of young teachers quit within five years in the Netherlands. Experienced teachers face fatigue and lose their impact on students who live in a fearful world. How can we strengthen our own professional identity so we will maintain our impact? And how can we be of added value to both the new and experienced teachers?	Sjoerd van den Berg
Do fearless leaders exist?	It seems like an open door to state that we should be fearless because we may look to Jesus Christ. Yet the experience is often different. How to deal with that in the often lonely job we have as leaders. What does self-reflection and networking mean for you, and how important are others in that. From our biblical perspective, we want to learn and share.	Bert Vogel

Fear and Uncertainty: Timothy and the Biblical vision about identifying and overcoming fear! *Super Seminar	An interactive study about the situation of Timothy in the city of Ephesus, the challenges that led to a feeling of inadequacy, and the steps of overcoming fear and uncertainty, as a model for teachers in today's world	Dan Botica
Developing Your Emerging Leaders	There is no doubt that good leadership is needed for Christian schools to thrive in an increasingly fear-filled world. But how can we identify and raise up these future leaders? This seminar will explore how we can invest in our current teachers who will, with God's help, become tomorrow's courageous leaders.	Roslyn Barnes
Building Bravehearts: The Foundation for Success	Building Bravehearts: The Foundation for Success explores the connection between courage and success in a world of fears, how we can help grow bravehearts, and how to restore courage if it is lost.	Joe Neff
Q & A about Christian Vocational education	Do you consider starting a Christian vocational education program? Are you searching for a vision on Christian vocational education? Or do you want to share your thoughts and questions about the local situation in your country with regard to vocational education? Come and visit our Q & A sessions. A lot of experts are waiting to answer your questions.	Johanneke de Braal, Krijn van Dijk, Marianneke Mudde, Just van Toor, Maaïke Visser, Alice Middelkoop
